ZINGARA'S INSANITY PLEA DEFEATED

Charge Of Attempted Murder.

WOULD-BE ASSASSIN OF
MR. ROOSEVELT.

(Reuter's Special Service.)

Miami, Florida, Yesterday.
Zingara, the Italian would-be assassin of President-Elect Franklin D. Roosevelt, who seriously wounded Mayor Cermak of Chicago when he shot at America's next President, has been declared mentally fit by doctors here, and will be formally charged with the attempted murder of Mr. Roosevelt and five others to-morrow.

In spite of the assailant's defiant outburst when arraigned before the Criminal Court on Friday, and which was reiterated to-day, the State has decided to brief three prominent lawyers to defend him. Nonchalant and unshaken Zingara appeared in the Criminal Court to-day, but the formal arraignment has been postponed until to-morrow. Despite the prisoner's violent declaration that he does not want assistance, the Judge announced the appointment of three lawyers to represent him.

Twenty Deputy-Sheriffs were stationed in the crowded courtroom for fear of disturbances, but everything passed off quietly.

The leading counsel for the defence has announced that he will demand a sanity test for Zingara.

Miami, Later.
After examining Zingara, the prison doctor said that there was no evidence of mental aberration, but the prisoner was undoubtedly suffering from acute stomach trouble.

CASH SHORTAGE IN MICHIGAN

State Of Emergency Declared.

SMALL WITHDRAWALS
BY DEPOSITORS.

(Reuter's Special Service.)

Lansing, Michigan, Yesterday.
The State Senate has passed a resolution declaring a state of emergency and empowering Governor Comstock to extend the banking moratorium to regulate the withdrawal of funds.

The resolution has been forwarded to the State House of Representatives.

However, only $4,610,000 of the $30,000,000 made available for withdrawal at the banks has so far been required to meet the demands of depositors.

Ford's Obstacle
More than 600 banks are affected by the 8-day moratorium which is rendering impossible the $1,400,000,000. The crisis was precipitated by a run on the Union Guardian Trust Company, of which Mr. Henry Ford, Mr. Edsel Ford and Mr. W. O. Briggs, maker of the Ford car body, are directors.

Mr. Henry Ford, on whom criticism has been showered by the Governor of Michigan, has refused to subordinate the sum of $7,000,000 which the bank holds to his account. His refusal is said to have caused a breakdown in the negotiations for the alleviation of the situation.

"Moral Sentence" On Japan.

REACTION IN NEW YORK.

Washington, Yesterday.

The New York Times states that the British Charge d'Affaires discussed the Committee of Nineteen's report with the Assistant-Secretary for Foreign Affairs, here. The nature of the conversation was not disclosed.

The paper, in an editorial, describes the Report as a "moral sentence" which the League neither desires nor means to enforce against Japan, and which has widened the door of conciliation. — Reuter.

EAST LANCASHIRES ON THE NEURALIA.

(Reuter's Special Service.)

Shanghai, Yesterday.
The First Batt. East Lancashire Regiment left here to-day at 6 a.m. for Hong Kong aboard the transport ship Neuralia. They are en route to Canton.

A Temperate, Just Report.

"THE TIMES" COMMENTS ON LEAGUE ACTION.

London, Yesterday.

"The Times" in an editorial characterises the Committee of Nineteen's Report as temperate, just and well-considered, and one which will stand on record as a deliberate opinion reached by the nations composing the League, on a dispute of major importance.

"If a wholly new situation is created by violent action on the part of either party, it is conceivable that the League Council may have to later reconsider the whole position."

"The report recommends a wide autonomy of the sort which is obviously intended to reserve to Japan more rights than she enjoyed under the old dispensation to which it is not proposed to revert."

"If the League Assembly adopts the Report, as it undoubtedly will, the League members will be expected to abstain from any act which might prejudice and delay the carrying out of its recommendations, and to continue not to recognise the present regime either de jure or de facto."

"While it is unnecessary for all the States concerned to tie themselves down to any particular policy for all time, it is most certainly advisable to take the League's report as the starting point and pursue the same policy which will only modify common consent." The Times adds. — Reuter.

Canton Students Urge Resistance.

REGAINING LOST TERRITORIES.

Canton, Yesterday.

Since Nanking has never mentioned a word regarding the recovery of lost territories, the Canton Students Alliance called yesterday to the Central authorities urging the immediate mobilisation of troops to safeguard Jehol and to regain territories occupied by the Japanese.

Regretting that Nanking would never diplomatic relations with Jehol, the telegram enquired whether Manchuria will be abandoned if the Japanese do not attack Jehol. Therefore the telegram stated that the Alliance is supporting the policy

POWERS' NOTE TO AUSTRIA

Friendly Settlement Of Arm Problem?

NOT AN ULTIMATUM.

London, Yesterday.

It is authoritatively learned that the Note to Austria, sent by the French Government, with adherence to Britain in no way an ultimatum, but is entirely of a friendly nature.

The English and French Governments have, for some time, been making friendly recommendations to Austria for the settlement of the matter and it is unlikely, that in the event of the negotiations being fruitless, that the matter will be referred to the League Council.

The note comments on the large number of rifles and machine guns which have been sent to an Austrian arms factory at Hirtzburg from Italy, for reconditioning, and alleges that the arms are intended for the secret arming of Austrian Fascists. — Reuter.

STUNTING AEROPLANE CRASHES

Two Famous Pilots
Killed.

"FLYING CIRCUS" TRAGEDY
IN SOUTH AFRICA

(Reuter's Special Service.)

Capetown, Yesterday.

Two well-known British airmen were killed here to-day, when the plane in which they were stunting at a height of 3,000 feet crashed. The pilots were Captain Lawson and Captain E. Ross, both of whom were members of Sir Alan Cobham's "Flying Circus" which was touring South Africa.

The tragedy is all the more poignant in view of the fact that Captain Lawson was married only eight days ago to a girl whom he took up as a passenger at Matizburg.

Details of the disaster are vague, but eye-witnesses state that the machine appeared to get into difficulties after a number of intricate "stunts" at a great height.

BALLADING BELOW THE EQUATOR

CONCERT SINGER'S AFRICAN TOUR

MALAY WEDDINGS AND DIAMOND MINES

By RITA BELL

Rita Bell, the singer who has been entertaining at the Peninsula Hotel, made this interesting South African journey not so long ago in concert engagements.

CAPE TOWN! The first lap of my African tour and the last place I had ever dreamed my voice would take me!

A month earlier in London, while broadcasting for the British Broadcasting Company, the African Theatres Limited representative induced me to take a prolonged tour for his company's circuit. He had traced the route on his office map, down around Spain, through the Canary Islands and Madeira, southward over the humpy equator, along the east coast—the gold coast of Africa—into her ear lobes. The rings of silver and gold and often further embellishments of diamonds, rubies or gold studs (according to the bank-roll of the wearer) are set into nostrils or along the ear rims. Mother move gently along the street, with a harmonica to their lips and a baby tied to their hips, somewhat in the manner of our American-Indian papoose. These were the current styles and it isn't likely that the Kaffir woman changes her mode oftener than contentually.

The rickshaw boys have their own "tin pan alley" where they gather at a rickshaw stand corner, awaiting customers and furnishing "hot" music from their crudely made native instruments.

FLAPPERS FROM THE LAKE TANGINIKIA REGION.

and around the tip of the peninsula to Cape Town. Within two weeks, I found myself at the Cape.

Cape Town is a city of infinite charm. Palm-edged streets; fine hotels; boasting one of the world's most wonderful bathing beaches; spectacular Table Mountain, giving this port its incomparable skyline, and its beautiful harbour. There is an air of cosmopolitanism, because its citizens have come from all corners of the globe—irresistible to a wide-eyed American trouper on her first "trek" to Africa.

It had never occurred to me that the South Africans and Rhodesians should crave theatrical entertainment. I had a hazy idea of a big country people by blacks and far from civilised. I was soon to find out that I had been engaged to sing and play for audiences of highly cultured English and Boers, who knew what they wanted and why.

Phyllis Nelson Terry had captivated them, as had the English music hall favourites, Marie Lloyd, George Robey, Arthur Boucher and our own Guy Bates Post.

My opening performance, however, was scheduled to take place in Durban, another week by water away.

Durban reminded me of San Diego. Sunny, tropical, Spanish stuccoed buildings and palms everywhere. No taxis, but obnoxious muscled rickshaw boys, trotting silently along the streets, adorned with a fed dozen bead bracelet on arms and legs; wearing a choice bunch of hyena tails and vari-coloured feathers in their hats. With two viciously curved horns projecting from both temples, they presented a fiercely weird appearance.

But underneath this forbidding exterior they were a happy countenance; always laughing and wise-cracking. On expression, I heard so often that I asked for a translation, was a phrase that sounded like "Um balla cona unfass." This was given with a click of the tongue to finish, and meant, literally translated, "Your father is a mother," or as we would say, "So's your old man." Even Kaffirs must have their slang.

In Durban I had my first glimpse of what the well dressed black woman wears. "Rings on her fingers and bells on her toes" are not enough! She also wears small, carved wooden drums, brightly painted and stretched

The week in Durban was full of delights. I sang in theatres crowded with British and Dutch audiences. They have a native market where everything from an ox to a porcupine quill is sold, and where the Kaffir replenishes his haberdashery of coloured beads.

Durban is the Atlantic City of Africa in season. The hotels were filled to capacity, providing remarkably large and enthusiastic audiences.

On to Pretoria, capital of the inland province. It was here I saw the famous "Wonderboom," or banyan tree, whose boughs stretch over a full acre. Pretoria has a smart country club, where the people know how to enjoy life. And what an abundance of American motor cars of good makes and late models! But the biggest "kick" was in seeing all of the Pretoria flappers on their motor-cycles; they seem to breed over night, and are all the rage with the younger girls. The outstanding event in Pretoria was my trip to the Premier diamond mine, about 27 miles from town.

The Premier is the largest individual diamond mine in the world. It seems back in 1902 Sir Thomas Cullin was prospecting around this part of the country and came upon this piece of valuable property.

I learned that there were two distinct kinds of diamond mining—the alluvial, where the stones are found near the surface of the earth, having been carried along by streams, and the depth mining, where the stones are discovered in volcanic shafts thousands of feet deep and are removed by blasting. The Premier is of the latter type. We arrived about noon, armed with a letter from Sir Ernest Oppenheimer, head of the "diamond syndicate," giving us "freedom of the interior," but no stones included.

It was just five minutes before the daily blast. This mine works continually, and another blast comes at midnight.

As I stood on the brink of this pit I seemed to be viewing the crater of an extinct volcano. Five thousand feet below, instead of soothing lava, I saw black specks of humanity darting hither and thither, placing the dynamite sticks and making ready to ignite the fuses which, when distributed about the bottom level and sides, loosen seven or eight tons of diamond-bearing rock.

The fuses were lit. The booming began! One thunderous explosion on the heels of another! A succession of booms lasting but three minutes, yet throwing up clouds of diamond dust. Then out came the ant-village of native labourers who had scattered to places of safety. They were all bent on loading the long chains of cars, known as "Kokopans," with this broken rock and then up the incline to the washing plant, to be further crushed, cleaned and eliminated.

We watched the gyratory crusher and pulator machines which clean the rock and transfer it to oiled belts to be put through its last process of being carried by flowing water over leather rollers coated with heavy grease to which the diamond adheres, while the valueless rock rolls on. These belts are scraped automatically and the stones are heated to remove the grease. Hand sorting follows by experts who classify the stones as to general weight and grade.

The largest single stone ever found at this Premier mine weighed 3028 carats and was purchased by the government for King Edward VII. This is one stone Peggy Joyce missed. The average find per day amounts to about $200,000 worth.

The little Dutch-African city of Bloemfontein came next in my itinerary. But this time I was getting accustomed to the South African habit of waking at 6 a.m. for tea. I am afraid that the Boer audiences here didn't get all of the lines in my American pianologs, but it was too late to re-learn them in Dutch.

And then on to Kimberly—a magic city. The home of the world's largest supply of engagement rings. Dust everywhere. I was blinded by dust and not diamond dust either. Dry and parched is this little city, once the mecca of all fortune hunters and still drawing them.

DUCKLING DESIGNS IN

THE NURSERY

Cut From Yellow Felt And Sewn On.

If you buy a quarter of a yard of butter-cup-yellow felt and a penny ball of orange wool, you will be able to make adorable borders of little gold ducklings, which can be used in many different ways.

The diagram shows how simple it is to draw out the shape of the duckling which can be enlarged or reduced to suit different requirements. Draw the figure, trace it on to a thin piece of cardboard, and cut it out. This gives you the pattern. Lay it on the felt, pencil round, and cut out the pencilled shape. The beak and funny little web-feet are worked directly on to the material in orange wool.

Having cut out the duckling, tack it to the material to be decorated, and applique it down with matching cotton. Pencil in the beak and feet, then work them in orange wool satin-stitch. You can work the eye in black wool, or better still, now on a flat black bead.

Now for some suggestions for making use of the applied ducklings. They will form a delightful border for nursery curtains of butcher-blue casement-cloth or linen, while a cushion-cover trimmed to match will look jolly on the window seat. And what about popping a duckling in each corner of the nursery tablecloth? Nanny's arm-chair, too, could have a chairback decorated with the friendly little fellows. And they would make a fascinating decoration for the cot-quilt in the night nursery.

On Bringing Up Children

Obedient Child Not Successful.

London.

THE obedient child who plays quietly and does exactly as "Mummy" and "Daddy" tells him to do, will not be much of a success in life.

At least that is the opinion of Dr. J. R. Rees, deputy director of the Institute of Medical Psychology. He advises parents to:

Encourage curiosity in children. Allow them to get dirty. Let them be destructive. Encourage them to take risks and to be adventurous.

"Parents as a whole," he said, "make their children far too safe. A child should never be encouraged to keep itself safe. It should be encouraged to be adventurous and take risks."

"The nice, neat, perfect home where children are made to play nicely with their toys without getting dirty is of no use to the normal child."

"A child must have a chance to explore and to express its ideas. Playing and experimenting with sand and mud and messy things satisfies a child, and all children should be given facilities for it."

—Reuter.

"Red Pepper" Hats For Spring

Navy Blue Suits For Town Wear

NEW SILK EFFECTS

SPICY shades are coming in the Spring. The mournful greys and Victorian violets of winter designs will be lost with the season. And for the Spring—the warmth and aromas of spices.

Nutmeg and cinnamon will be used for tweed and country clothes. And a new orange-red shade, called carrot, will be seen a lot in jumpers.

But the warmest touch of all will be the "red pepper" hats. These demure little hats, in clear, glistening red, will be worn tilted over the forehead towards one eye.

A novel idea conceived by milliners, which is being saved for spring wear, is the use of a tassel on the crown of a hat, similar to that of an Arab's fez.

Of course there will be other colours, on a different note, that will ring out the winter and welcome the spring.

There is Nightingale and Willow-warbler browns, Canary and Hammer yellows, Bluebird blue, Lovebird green, Robin and Shrike reds and Dover and Wagtail greys.

For town wear, navy blue will be almost a uniform. Some of the navy suits will have short coats linked in front like a man's dinner jacket. Others, less severe, will be trimmed with grey fox fur.

A new silky material has appeared—called Forked Lightning. The ground work is the blue-black of a thunder sky and it is over-patterned with jagged white lines, like the forked lightning of a summer night.

Woolens this year will be smooth and soft as lamb's wool. A favourite of one designer is "kitten ear," a downy, smoky grey material.

Buttons made of unpolished oak in the exact shape of collars is the newest ghoulie trick of fashion.

Dainty looking, they were used as decoration for a woven woollen fabric suit, smartly tailored, which was shown at a London dress show.

Other fancy buttons, exactly like cubes of lump sugar. Almost good enough to eat.

And a dashing cravat pin turned out to be a heavy gold bar with a slim gold pencil as ornament.

Buttons bearing chevron patterns to match the dress fabric design are another novelty.

Eye veils, which Fashion has a whim for now, are being worn with such mascots as scarlet hearts and Swastikas for monograms. At a recent society wedding a smart woman attracted interest to her eye veil which had a border of golden sequins, like "tiddy-winks" buttons.

Another vogue of the moment is striped fingernails. They are painted with minute black and white stripes to match a striped handbag or scarf.—Reuter.

FAVOURITES FOR DERBY AND CHAMPIONS BEATEN INTO PLACES

COO COO BAY AND DIANA BAY LOSE

COSSACK'S BEAUTY AND SADKO RESPONSIBLE

BIG DIVIDENDS FROM SURPRISES

SHANGHAI JOCKEYS JUST HOLD THEIR OWN AGAINST LOCALS.

SENSATIONAL RESULTS AND EXCEPTIONALLY HIGH DIVIDENDS FEATURED THE OPENING DAY OF THE 1933 ANNUAL RACE MEETING AT THE VALLEY YESTERDAY.

A fairly large crowd witnessed the defeat of the Derby favourite, Coo Coo Bay, by Cossack's Beauty; the success of Trentbridge, the second favourite; the eclipse of Diana Bay, undefeated champion, by Sadko in record time; the failure of Porth, a favourite for the Rooty Hill Derby, to start in the Sydney Maidens; and last, but not least, the popular victory of that old favourite, Sitting Bull.

The first sensation of the day was provided when it was proclaimed that King Salmon, red-hot favourite for the Valley Stakes, would not face the starter. The pony cracked up badly on the eve of the race with an attack of colic.

The Shanghai jockeys did not have matters all their own way, Mr. "Leo" Frost, the Colony champion, following closely in Mr. A. F. Clark's footsteps with three wins. Only an additional second place gave the visitor the honour of leading the jockeys' list.

Mr. D. S. Li, the Shanghai rider, had the satisfaction of bringing Night Star home to pay $84 for a win—the highest dividend of the day. Cossack's Beauty paid $81, while Sadko returned $61.50 for a win and Flying Boy ($67.08) and Jungle Jim ($60.70) paid very satisfactory place dividends.

THE GOAT'S WITHDRAWAL.

With the news of King Salmon's withdrawal from the Valley it came as a surprise to see The Goat entered for the Wong Nei-Chong Stakes. Had he been entered for the Valleys he would probably have won—he was second favourite on Friday night. Of course, he won quite comfortably, though he had to make up quite a lot of leeway on Jack O'Lantern after a poor start. His win was the first of Mr. A. F. Clark's successes.

The Maidens provided the first sensation of the meeting. Coo Coo Bay, considered to be a certain winner over any distance, was beaten by Cossack's Beauty over six furlongs. Mr. Hill did not get away to a good start and was unable to let his mount through until it was too late.

Cossack's Beauty, splendidly ridden by Mr. "Johnny" Heard, paid out $81 for his win, no engrossed were the public on Mr. Dunbar's entry.

Valley Hall was responsible for the first dead-heat, Mr. D. S. Li bringing him through with a fine burst at the finish to get on level terms with Banjolina which led throughout.

H. E. the Governor, accompanied by Lady Peel, arrived in time to see Porth's failure to start in the Sydney Maidens and Night Star's triumph in a field of fourteen. The Star stable entry paid $84 for a win—the highest dividend of the day. Mr. Rafeek's City of Brisbane was five lengths behind Mr. D. S. Li's mount.

Mr. Frost rode a grand race to bring Sitting Bull in ahead of Gay Crusader, which was ridden perfectly by Mr. Y. T. Fung. The latter, riding at top weight, kept the lead just as long as he could, and was only beaten over the last hundred yards.

The Valley Stakes witnessed the eclipse of Black Velvet, Swale bursting through the big field of twenty starters to assume a commanding position which Mr. A. F. Clark never relinquished, though Hey Tor and Flying Boy were going well at the finish.

Trentbridge, ridden by Mr. V. V. Needa, never looked like being overtaken in the Trial Plate when he led the field of seven throughout. Porth Face and Solar Star were clearly out-classed by the potential Derby winner, whose success on the day of the favourite's failure makes the classic all the more interesting.

Cyclamen Bay just managed to dead-heat with Hetman in the

SPALDING for Speed

The all-important factor in modern lawn tennis is speed and yet more speed. Other things being equal the man with that extra speed wins the match.

The new Spalding laminated multi-ply rackets are the fastest and most powerful ever produced. They can be strung to the highest possible tension without risk of warping thus giving tremendous pace to the ball as it leaves the racket.

The Spalding range of rackets for 1933 comprises seventeen attractive models at prices to suit all purses.

Recreio Garner First League Points.

After being two goals down at one period of the game and 2-1 down at the interval the Recreio astounded their supporters with a brilliant second half recovery against the Lincolns at Chatham Road.

By winning by the odd goal in five the Recreio garnered their first League points of the season. Malpas and Ridley gave the Lincolns the lead and F. Santos reduced the deficit before the interval. Gomes and J. Santos scored in the second half. Cork was the most prominent player on the field, but he badly lacked support.

Sgt. Caswell lined out the following teams:—Lincolns:—Heath; Turner, Ash; Dudley, Cork, Bett; Baldry, Harding, Malpas, Ridley and Heenquart. Recreio:—Marques; Silva-Netto, Gutierrez, McIntosh, Figueiredo, Oliveira; Laurel, Gomes, Santos F., Santos J. and Ribeiro.

JUNIOR SHIELD.

Lincolns Beat South China "A."

The Lincolns entered the second round of the Junior Shield at the expense of South China "A" at Caroline Hill, winning by 3 goals to 1. The Lincolns opened the scoring from the kick-off through F. McGuinness, and kept their lead to the interval.

From the restart South China equalised through Tong Hing from a penalty. McGuinness again gave his side the lead with a good goal, and P. McGuinness put his side further ahead from a penalty. South China:—Lang Sik-hing; Tse Tak, Ma Shin-chuen; George Yueng, Yau Nea-hung, Tang Yat-ming; To Wai-hung, Lai Shui-wong, Tong Wing, Tang Yan, Shuenng Chan and Wing Knn. Lincolns:—Dacon; Roden, Colclough; Maughan, Worral, Willey; Clayton, Bannes, McGuinness P., McGuinness F. and Brennan.

SECOND DIVISION.

BORDERERS BEAT KOWLOON.

Kowloon put up a great fight with only ten men against the Borderers at Sookunpo and went down after a great struggle by 3 goals to 4. Forley, B. Matthias and Harbly scored for the Borderers and White added another when he headed into his own goal. Parthy (3) and Phillips (2) scored for Kowloon. Borderers:—Williams; Rees, Mountford; Court, Bebbington, Wallace; Prichard, Forley, Hamblin, Morris and 1 Matthias. Kowloon:—Davis; White G., Willis; Tilly, Staveley, Webb; Owen-Dadles, Parthy, Phillips and White V.

ATHLETIC TAKE POINTS.

A great display of goalkeeping by Ng Che-pan prevented the Athletics from scoring more than one goal against Ewo at Caroline Hill. Five minutes after the breather Yeung Kan-po took the ball in his stride and scored with a good shot. Ewo:—Ng Che-pan; Ng Fook-hing, Ho Yul-tung, H. C. To, Tse Ah-lee, To Ho-hang; Pui Tai-chan, Key Hoe-tang, Tung Hau and Ko Ah-so. Athletics:—Fung Hing-tang; Loo Hin-cheung, Tang Kwong-tang; Wong Wing-lai, Ho Chee-wong, Leo Chul-yang, Leo Chai-wai, Yeung Kan-po, Wong Sik-wing, Shek Pui-tim and Fung King-yu.

NAVY SHARE SPOILS.

In a great game at Kowloon the Navy and the Artillery shared four goals. The Navy centre-half, Martin, was the outstanding player in the game.

Gibbs Dentifrice keeps teeth safe and sound

Men and women with perfect, beautiful teeth realise how wise Mother was to teach them about Gibbs Dentifrice in Nursery Days.

Then, as now, they loved the clean refreshing taste of Gibbs Dentifrice.

Into every crevice and interstice of the teeth, the flood of fragrant antiseptic foam penetrates — to clean away everything that could cause decay. Into corners no toothbrush could reach, Gibbs Dentifrice goes — cleaning safely, surely. And the natural pearly lustre of the teeth is brought out by the gentle polishing agent that never scratches, not even at the danger line where teeth meet gums. For men, for women, for children — Gibbs Dentifrice is safe, sure, wholesome.

CONCERT SINGER'S AFRICAN TOUR

There are no lawns or trees, unless growth under protest, for this soil harbours diamonds, not roots. The paradox of it is the striving for a gay, social life, with Kimberly's millionaires, first families, sons at Oxford, and brilliant race meets.

I was warned about my next move up to Johannesburg—the city of gold, 6400 feet above sea level and whose altitude would "positively" make vocal trouble for any singer. Here is a miniature Chicago, often called the wickedest city in the world. Gay, modern, sporty to the last word, with smart country, golf, and turf clubs; cabarets and races flourish; several legitimate theatres as well as dozens of cinema palaces prosper. As I had a few days before opening, I went to see "Tip Toes," running at the Empire, with an English-African cast.

Friday night is "swank" night, when all of the elite occupy the downstairs and boxes, in dinner clothes. The prices for modern French or English clothes in Africa are staggering. You see the smartest of attire on such occasions. The same crowds are augmented later by more of the city's "high-brows" at the Carlton hotel for dancing. It is hard to believe that but a hundred miles or so from this centre of luxury and modern city life can be seen the spoor of the wild hyena and on a still night can be heard the roar of a not too distant lion!

I played several weeks in and near Johannesburg, as they call it, and grew to love its sun-loving public and indulgent hosts.

The big event for a stranger is to see the tribal Kaffir dances given by the native workers at the various gold mine compounds. On a dry, sun-baked arena we saw the frenzied, primeval rites of the black man. Loina girded with goat skins, anklets of ox tails, beads everywhere, off-setting gleaming torsos in the hot midday sun. Now and then some ambitious sheik, striving to look like his white brother, carried a discarded umbrella or wore automobile goggles. One hung a padlock around his neck, while still another disported with great dignity a cast off alarm clock.

A few brightly-striped sweaters (the Kaffir's coveted attire) lent additional colour to this scene. The peppy cheer leader, wearing little more than a grin, warms the participants into hectic tempo of rhythm and chant. At a blow of his whistle new formations and steps are executed, always in perfect unison; beating the duty ground with hardened, calloused feet. The original Black Bottom!

This group, when exhausted, is succeeded by another tribe, which does its stuff to the accompaniment of tom tom wooden clappers, while native police keep order among the enthusiastic onlookers. One of these policemen is 7 feet tall and has only one arm, but the people scatter at his voice.

A native witch-doctor at our feet opened a curious snuff box dangling from his neck, inhaled a pinch of its gunpowder contents, shook some shell-like bones and mumbled a few syllables. He looked exceedingly sad and shook his head. We were told that he had "dealt a fatal hand."

But the Zambesi and Victoria falls, further north, beckoned me onward I decided I would not turn southward until I had retraced a few of old Trader Horn's steps, so on to Northern Rhodesia!

At each stop along the veldt we were offered wooden, carved dolls, hides, beads and native handwork by black children in their birthday clothes. Hyenas, occasional jackals, sable-antelope and families of monkeys were glimpsed across the hot plains.

As we neared the falls, it got hotter and hotter. Imagine Niagara doubled in volume, height and length, and you have Victoria falls. I tramped in oiledskins through the sublime "rain forest" at its top, trending on frail tropical orchids and other rare flora, always half hidden by the permanent fog.

Up the placid Zambesi, although infested with man-eating crocodiles, went our party in a launch to have tiffin in a Ritz-Carlton on the tiny palm covered island a few miles above.

A week later, loaded with gifts, curios and skins, I reached Cape Town again, over 2000 miles south on the last lap of my tour.

Here I witnessed a strange Malay wedding, where the bridegroom goes to the church for the ceremony alone and the bride is paraded for a week before being delivered to the spouse. Viewing the ceremonial sword dance, full of religious significance was one of the highlights of my Cape Town engagement.

We were ushered, this warm Sunday evening, into a close, darkened room in the Malay quarter. Candles faintly illuminated the room.

At one end, a javish altar was erected, bearing Arabic banners, tinsel and rows and rows of swords, of all lengths and descriptions. Incense rose from urns of hot coals. Six young Asiatics began massaging the tom toms before them. No air was permitted in the room, for fear a draft would break the sensitive drumheads.

The chanting began. The leader read from the Koran in Arabic. The old and young men hearseily waited the same dirges to the rhythmic beating of the tom toms, as a boy slowly rose and began the terrible dance of lances, slaying himself at each beat of the drum.

Then another took the floor. The music grew fiercer and faster as he drew a sharp, curved sword over the flame and then passed it among us to test its razor-like blade. With this he slashed at his forearm, waist and neck, then he took a sharp, stiletto-like sword, passing it through his ears, cheeks, shoulders, under arm, always exhibiting to us that it never drew blood!

After more of this self-torture, the old leader, inspired to action by the preceding acts of religious fervor, clutched a deadly-looking weapon, and with closed eyes proceeded to "get hot," bringing it with all force in contact with his bare abdomen, ankles and Adams apple. He wound up the performance by wildly trading on the sword's upturned blade.

Still another thrill for me was that I was the first American girl to use the great broadcasting station of the South African Theatres at Cape Town.

The steamer bound for England had arrived and was taking on passengers. Among them was a very happy, though a bit weary American "chanteuse," loaded with Greasy zebra hides, huge leopard skins, hyena, a dozen blue monkeys, a python and puff adder skin, a large carcass rug of weird African civet, a collection of sable antelope horns, native musical instruments, carved stools, ostrich feathers, not to mention the rare gift of a set of small hook-like bones from the shoulder embody rare power for good luck.

I was unwilling to leave this fascinating country to return to realities again. Shortly afterwards, I was to reminisce with an old, old traveller, who knew the African veldt before I was born. Trader Horn paid a visit to New York and I was commissioned to interview him for my forthcoming assignment to the Johannesburg Star. We talked of cabbages, kings, Zulus and prima donnas.

BRIDGE NOTES

NEEDLESS FINESSING

(By ELY CULBERTSON)

As Bridge players progress in their skill, they learn that additional tricks may frequently be made due to the position of adversely held honours. Thus, if one player holds Ace-Queen of a suit and leads from the other hand toward that combination and plays the Queen to the first trick, he will win 2 tricks in the suit whenever the King is held by the opponent at his right. Frequently, this play is essential to success. While it has only one chance in two of winning, unless the bidding has disclosed the probable possession of the adverse honour, to lead the Ace and then the Queen would reduce the chance of winning 2 tricks with this combination nearly to zero, as it would be rare indeed to find the King a Singleton in one of the opponents' hands. If a finesse is necessary, it should be taken, but the play of the hand should be so planned as to avoid it if at all possible. One method of avoiding the finesse is to compel a chosen opponent to lead the suit for you, as the hand-to-day discloses.

South had reached a contract of six hearts which, while not justified by the possession of honour-tricks, found its excuse in the extremely favourable distribution. West opened the diamond and South won with the Ace. If the two trumps adversely held were not both in either the East or West hand, South could see his contract laid down. He, therefore, led the Ace of hearts, only to receive the unwelcome news that East had a winning trump left. South therefore, can lose no other tricks. He could make his contract if he found the spade King in the West hand, but this play would give him only one chance in two of winning. He had another line of play that increased the chances tremendously. His next play was to lead a small club winning with the King in Dummy. A diamond was then led from Dummy and trumped in the closed hand. Now South laid down the Ace of clubs and followed with a small club which was trumped in Dummy. Dummies last diamond was led, trumped in the closed hand, and the Queen of clubs led, upon which East was forced to follow suit. Actually, it made no difference if he had a fourth club or not. South now led a trump and East was forced to win. To lead a diamond would permit South to discard his losing spade, while to lead the spade presented South with 2 tricks in spades. Whichever course East selected, the contract was assured.

Card Reading and Contract Making.

Card reading is one of the most fascinating features of the game of Contract Bridge. To be able to determine after a few rounds of play the distribution of the suits in the hands of your opponents is frequently of almost incalculable value in the making of a contract. The good player almost subconsciously early acquires the habit of mentally noting each card that is played and drawing inferences from it that will aid him in placing not only the key cards of the suit, but the entire distribution of a suit around the table. Sometimes this knowledge is of little value, but even if it is of no importance on a particular deal, to make it a practice to note the distribution of the suits is good play, because you never can tell when a hand will turn up in which this knowledge is essential to the making of your contract.

A hand, played by Mr. Louis R. Ayres of Philadelphia, is one in which an ambitious contract of six spades was only fulfilled because Mr. Ayres, who held the South hand, was able to utilize the all-mination play through his knowledge of the distribution of the suits. Neither side vulnerable. South, Dealer.

1—South, with 5 honour-tricks is not unduly optimistic in making a Slam try.
2—North's bid for a Slam is not fully justified. His hand contains, it is true, magnificent trump support, but has in all only 1½ honour-tricks. The void in diamonds may mean only a duplication of values and the declarer may be compelled to helplessly watch his opponents take in 2 or 3 tricks before surrendering the lead.

West opened the Queen of hearts, and Mr. Ayres won with the King. He then led a diamond, which was trumped in Dummy. He returned to his own hand with a trump and repeated this process until his hand was void of diamonds and the adverse trumps had been picked up. Now, to guard against the possibility that West had made an unsound Overcall bid, he led another round of hearts, upon which East discarded a diamond. South's chance of making the contract depended upon East holding five clubs; therefore Mr. Ayres now laid down the Ace and King of clubs and followed with the deuce, was the only trick for East and West, as East's hand was now void of everything but diamonds and clubs, and the lead of either would permit a discard in one hand and a ruff in the other.

Conciliation Still Possible.

EVENTS during the past few days have added to the uneasiness felt in regard to the Sino-Japanese dispute and it is apparent that the crisis is near at hand. The protracted negotiations at Geneva have at last produced a definite result in the form of the report of the Committee of Nineteen which the League Assembly will be asked to accept on Friday. Definite action by the League will force an expression of policy from Tokyo and it is significant that the Japanese ultimatum was delivered yesterday demanding the Chinese evacuation of Kailu. The Japanese invasion of Jehol, if it takes place at all, will be commenced within the next few days. It is thought in many quarters that Japan may withdraw her troops from Jehol borders if she receives concessions in Manchuria. Substantiation of this theory is seen in the more conciliatory attitude manifested by the Japanese delegates at Geneva and it would seem that the danger of a fresh outbreak of hostilities in the North may be averted by diplomatic bargaining. At this stage any prophecy of Japanese intentions is purely conjecture and it is not improbable that Tokyo is prepared to make some concession in order to evade direct defiance of Powers who lately have manifested a hardening of opinion on the Manchuria issue. The report of the Committee of Nineteen will be widely approved as just and well-considered but it is not made clear how the League intends to carry out its recommendations. It will be no difficult matter to withhold recognition of Manchukuo, but it is unlikely that any League pressure will persuade Japan to withdraw her troops from Manchuria. In fact, the Report, while in itself a masterly-compiled document, advances the issue little further than did the Lytton Report, on which its recommendations are founded. American opinion, which of late has been extremely pessimistic, inclines to the view that the Report offers a new path to conciliation.

Some perturbation has been aroused locally by the report that an economic blockade of China ports is contemplated at Tokyo while fears have been expressed that Hong Kong may be bombed. There is little likelihood of an attack on the Colony, but in the eventuality of a blockade Hong Kong would suffer through proximity to Canton. However, there is reason to hope that Japan will scrupulously avoid taking extreme measures, and the new possibility of conciliation being effected at Geneva indicates that a settlement may yet be reached. Matters have now reached a stage where a definite decision is called for and the events of the next few days will decide the issue.

Dancing Academies In Hong Kong.

LITTLE GROUND exists at present for apprehension regarding the conduct of the Colony's cabarets and dancing academies but any move which would ensure direct and effective Police supervision would be welcomed. Mr. Braga's questions at the Legislative Council meeting revealed that few regulations exist for the control of dancing academies and that the authorities possess a rather remote control. It was indicated to Mr. Braga that suitable regulations will probably be framed which will enable Police to prevent any abuse of the present privileges. Care should be taken, however, that the regulations are not made too rigid as suppression may be attended by undesirable consequences. There is not much night life in Hong Kong and dancing is a relaxation and entertainment which is a recognised part of modern life. As long as steps are taken to guarantee the good conduct of the dancing establishments no undue restrictions need be enforced.

WOMEN OVERSLEEP
MORE THAN MEN

Rough Blankets Produce
Bad Dreams.

SPECIALIST'S VIEWS.

London.
When the alarm clock goes off in the morning it is the women who turn over and go to sleep again. They not only oversleep more than men do but they sleep longer, more lightly, and more peacefully.

A Harley-street specialist has been conducting research into the question of sleep and dreams and he concludes that men are the ones who have the bad dreams, which he thinks is due to the fact that men have more work and worry.

He declares that dreamless sleep is not essential for complete rest but that constant bad dreams are a sign of bad health. He also believes that seven hours is enough sleep for anyone over 13.

"A rough blanket or even a hot water-bottle can produce a really bad dream," he says. "Some of the most remarkable dreams of which I have heard resulted from hot water-bottles being placed at the sides of the feet."

"We dream at great speed—more in a minute than we can relate in an hour of hard talking. When we dream that we are being murdered or that something appalling is happening to us, we would find, if we awakened, that a rattling window or a banging door was responsible. Sometimes it is only the ticking of a watch or clock."

If you cannot sleep the specialist suggests that you close your eyes and then try to look towards the centre of your forehead. This is the position the eyes naturally adopt during sleep. When they are turned in like that the mind becomes blank.

It is a characteristic of great men, he says, to carry on with little sleep. Their sleep is refreshing because it is intense. The man who "gets out of the wrong side of the bed," he explained, is the one who wakes up out of an intense sleep.

CINEMA AUDIENCE
RUN RIOT.

Theatre Wrecked When Film Is "Cut."

Madrid.
Because the management cut out an execution scene, Alicante cinema goers who had paid to see a gangster film, rioted and wrecked the house.

Chairs were smashed, the drop-curtain torn to shreds, and all the films destroyed by the angry mob, who paid no heed to the manager's attempt to explain. Some of the rioters made off with the box-office receipts.

The cinema has only just been redecorated.—Reuter.

GIRL GUIDES ENTERTAIN.

An enjoyable time was spent at the Diocesan Girls' School yesterday afternoon, when the Kowloon Girl Guides were hosts to their Hong Kong sister Guides.

The party was given by Miss H. D. Sawyer, Commissioner for Kowloon Guides.

VISIT OF MRS. GRUNDY & DORA.

Mrs. Grundy's come to town, accompanied by Dora. Upon our cabarets they frown, "What awful sins, begorra!"

We must institute reforms. And safe the youths from danger. They are raising fearful storms. Of resentment and anger. In an interview they said, "Please do not think we are fussy. Think of the price our youths have paid."

To every painted hussy! They cannot do their work right. If at night they go a-dancing. These slight youths do look a fright. The like, gay Othelets they go prancing.

We must close these cabarets down, And so-called academies, In fact, we must purge the town Of sinful epidemics."

They went to see the I.G.P., And asked embarrassing questions, Until that good man could not see How he could avoid confessions.

Mrs. Grundy's satisfied, And so is Dame Dora. "One must think of one's civic pride, Indeed one must, begorra!"

TOPICS

From Our Own Correspondent

January 20.

Expensive Masques.

The beautiful Inner Temple Hall is not to be the scene this year—as it was last year and the year before—of a representation of the devotional play which imports scenes from the celebrated Coventry Nativity play.

Instead, the performance will be given next month in the appropriate setting of Southwark Cathedral.

Although the halls of the Temple are not perfectly fitted for such productions, that of the Inner witnessed several in ancient days. Shakespeare himself is believed to have taken part there in a performance of "Twelfth Night."

The statement that one of the old masques cost £20,000 is probably an exaggeration, but those revels were undoubtedly expensive as well as popular affairs. Following one of them was a heavy bill for repairs caused by "such as climbed up at the windows of the Hall to see the Maske."

Railway Warnings.

The Great Western Railway have decided to discontinue such notices as "For Light Articles Only," on the ground that they have become familiar, and have therefore fallen into the contempt of passengers.

This particular notice is different on every railway, and the longest version one remembers runs thus: "The use of this rack for heavy and bulky parcels involves risk of injury to passengers, and is forbidden."

Grass in the Parks.

A new path in Kensington Gardens is something of an event. It runs diagonally from the Broad Walk to the Round Pond.

Since Mr. Lansbury took away all the fences the short cuts across the turf have become desperately bare. In the present instance the authorities have only recognised a fait accompli.

But a stroll round the park as shows many other deplorable patches, and it is evident that if we are to have any grass left in the more frequented parts Mr. Lansbury's banishment of the fences must be revoked.

Thackeray's House.

Soho will shortly lose some of its most interesting old houses. Arrangements have been made to demolish part of Maple-street, just off Fitzroy-street, and among the buildings to be razed is Thackeray's house.

This pleasant old Georgian building is rich in literary associations, and has an air of dignity above that of most of the houses in Maple-street. For years Thackeray lived there, and untold hours he spent roaming the neighbouring streets alert for suggestions of character. Some of his best work was done in Maple-street.

Close by are the haunts of Hazlitt, De Quincey, William Blake, and Mozart.

Although Thackeray House has of recent years been sub-let to a number of artistic people, several of the rooms remain almost as when Thackeray left.

London's Godfather.

To no one man does the average Londoner owe more of his enjoyment of the parks than to Sir Lionel Earle, the Permanent Secretary to the Office of Works, whose retirement has been announced.

To his enthusiasm, as a gardener, are due in great part the beauties of Hyde Park, St. James's Park, Kew, and Bushy, to mention only the most outstanding examples. And many a diplomatic or consular officer in remote parts of the world has received requests from him for rare plants for London's parks.

To ensure that these plants should be hardy ones, Sir Lionel usually requested that they should come from an altitude of not less than 4,000ft.

The scope of the Office of Works is very wide—and it has been greatly enlarged by the authority it now exercises over ancient buildings as national monuments.

Young Headmasters.

Numerous passing references to the comparative youthfulness of the headmasters have been made.

With possibly two exceptions, the heads of all the schools described were "at the helm" there before their fortieth year, and one of the exceptions, Mr. H. H. Hardy, who recently transferred to Shrewsbury, was comfortably under that age when he previously took charge of Cheltenham College.

Repton's new headmaster, Mr. J. T. Christie, was only 32 when he was appointed, an age at which the great Arnold began his work at Rugby. But Repton has some tradition for youthfulness in this respect.

The present Archbishop of York became headmaster before he was 30, and he was succeeded by Mr. G. F. Fisher, now Bishop of Chester, who went there in 1914 when he was only 27.

Thus by a year Mr. Fisher beat Mr. L. M. Jacks, who was 28 when he went to Mill Hill, and probably set a post-war fashion in youthful "headships."

Model Exactitude.

After hiding behind a tarpaulin screen for about four months, and being greatly missed, the Law Courts clock over-looking Temple Bar has emerged in the glory of fresh paint.

To designate it the "Law Courts clock" is merely to distinguish it from 650 other clocks in the great building, none nearly so illustrious.

With a justified reputation for exactness, this particular clock is the envy of every public clock in the neighbourhood. Although not synchronised with Greenwich, its errors over long periods amount to mere fractions of seconds.

The Secret.

A story attaches to this consistency. When a famous Croydon firm were given the contract for the clock, they adopted a novel principle of balance and escapement which was the invention of a working-man who was said to be unable to read or write.

Honest Londoners.

The honesty of Londoners is daily attested by the pennies left by purchasers of evening newspapers on the stands of momentarily absent vendors.

Recently one had a more striking instance. The young daughter of a friend lost two pound notes after a matinee. Leicester-square Tube station was a likely spot for the loss, but, one would think, an exceedingly unlikely one for a recovery.

None the less the stationmaster had duly been made their custodian by someone who had picked them up. He mentioned, moreover, that shortly before a passenger had handed in a hand-bag containing £25 in cash.

After all, there would not be the periodical and gargantuan sales of lost property if the generality of people were not honest.

The Law Courts' Jubilee.

Recent celebrations marked the lapse of fifty years since the Law Courts were opened. There was one Lord Chief Justice—Coleridge—who took pride in alluding to them as "the Royal Courts of Justice," which is their proper name, although nobody ever uses it.

Perhaps because we do not use the full appellation of the Law Courts (although the Telephone Directory does) we do not often reflect that this building is the successor of that "certain place" appointed by Magna Carta as the place where justice may always be obtained.

Flowering Shrubs.

LITSEA citrate has finished flowering and Eukalyptus quinqueflora is past its best. Raphanopis indica is coming into bloom and soon the hillside will be gay with its white and pink flowers. The commonest species of wild Rhododendron are coming into flower though bushes of one species, R. Farrerianum, have in places been out for weeks. The other species R. indicum is in full flower on the bank opposite the Helena May Institute.

Rhododendron Championii with charcol-colour flowers is now in bloom. There are two or three good bushes in the Botanic Gardens. Liquidambar formosensis, the Far Eastern Plane tree, is in that interesting stage when the swollen buds are bursting to disclose the delicate green foliage and the young inflorescences. This is the tree which, with its amber, brown, or red-brown leaves, in winter is so attractive; it is abundant in the Tai Po district. A third member of the HAMAMELIDACEAE is now in flower. This is Eutima abnormifolia; the tree is fairly widely distributed on Victoria Peak near Lizard and other roads. The very curious small flowers are yellow and black. I can call to mind no other flowers which are more than half black. But it is by the scent of the flowers that the tree will be first noticed. The smell is strong and reminds me of orange blossom or perhaps still more of orange peel.

Violets. Two of the local species are now in flower on the island and in the Territories, these are Viola patinii and Viola diffusa. In the first all leaves and flowers arise from one central crown, in the second there is a central rosette which produces a small rosette. The leaf of V. patinii is smooth and the petiole slightly winged, that of V. diffusa is hairy and prominently winged. The flowers differ considerably. The two upper petals and the mid lower one of V. patinii are very pale violet with deep violet veins, the two lateral petals are pale violet with deep veins. In V. diffusa the four upper petals are pale mauve or violet, or white, the lowest petal is not bifid has a small tip and is smaller than the others, it has purple veins. The centre of the flower is definitely white.

The 11th and 12th of February were spent at Canton on a visit to Lingnan University. The plants are not as advanced at Canton as they are at Hong Kong, for example on our recent visit to the Shum Chun Valley the fields of wheat were nearly ripe, ripe enough for us to extract the grains from the ears by rubbing, the wheat on the University Campus at Lingnan was still in flower. A Magnolia was in full bloom and its large white fragrant blossoms were most attractive, it was one of the deciduous species, M. nudiflora I believe.

Early on the Sunday morning a solitary blackbird was observed running about on a lawn, stopping at times to look around and to probe for insects. During the last fortnight a solitary blackbird has been seen in the University Compound in Hong Kong; they are very shy birds much more wary than the European blackbird they so closely resemble.

In the courtyard of a Chinese restaurant we were greatly intrigued by the behaviour of a white-crowned bird. The bird was very tame and when released from its cage flew in turn to two or three of the other cages and hopped with their occupants. A Hwa mei resented its familiarity and pecked at it but the little bird did not mind and flew away. It settled on a Chinese who attempted to catch it but it flew round him and settled on him again much to the delight of the spectators to whom the bird was obviously an old friend. I have never seen so small a bird as I saw this one, it did not mind any of the rather rough but friendly attentions that were shown it by the Chinese; the bird is only a little bigger than a Tailor-bird and is about the size of a small Warbler. During the winter season in Hong Kong these birds congregate in large flocks of scores or perhaps hundreds of individuals. The College of Agriculture Lingnan University issues a "Price List of Seed and Nursery Stock" which will be of value to those who cultivate flowers, vegetables, flowering trees or fruit trees. The list is in Chinese but the English and Latin names are also included.

ST. JOSEPH'S COLLEGE PRIZE DAY

Bishop Valtorta Urges More Keenness.

HIGH REPUTATION.

"If you are to accomplish your full duty in regard to the College you should take a keen interest in all its varied activities, intellectual, athletic and moral," declared the Rt. Rev. Mgr. Bishop H. Valtorta, D.D., in addressing the students of St. Joseph's College, Hong Kong, at the annual prize distribution, held in the College Hall yesterday morning. There was a large attendance.

The Bishop expressed the earnest hope that the College would continue to maintain its high reputation among the Colleges of the Far East. "But this," added his Lordship, "in a great measure depends on the student body composing it."

Brother Matthias, Director of the College, presided.

Reading the report, the Headmaster said:

The average enrollment during the Scholastic year ending December 31, 1932, was 690, the average daily attendance 658, giving a percentage attendance of 95. We reduced our numbers by nearly a hundred on the preceding year. Boys are now admitted, only with difficulty, into the Remove and Upper Classes and we adhere strictly to the requirements of the Education Code regarding the age limit for Classes 7 and 8. Greater efficiency in the class room calls for these restrictions in the matter of admissions.

Mr. Sutherland spent three days in examining the various classes. In his report, he says, "All written work was good and carefully corrected, but Composition in some classes showed too much similarity. More oral Composition should be taught. Reading in good but still lacks expression. Colloquial has improved in the Chinese Divisions, but their pronunciation requires constant attention. Mathematics are well taught. The school is very efficient."

We presented 46 candidates for the Matriculation and/or the Senior Local, 25 passed; I wish to congratulate E. Hoffman and A. Williams on securing distinctions in English. Of the 97 Junior candidates that sat for the examination 50 passed with a total of 32 distinctions.

RADIO SET CAUSES SUICIDE.

Invalid's Life Made "Unbearable."

New York.

Because she found the sound of her neighbour's radio set unbearable, an invalid woman worked her wheel chair to a window of her apartment and plunged six stories to her death.

She left a note addressed to the coroner explaining her suicide. It read: "I have been confined to my home for three years and to a wheelchair for 19 months. 'The incessant radio set playing has increased my nervousness and made life unbearable.'"

Much sympathy for the unfortunate woman will be felt by many who have suffered from the American family radio. Often it is turned on in the morning and left running all day, like a bath tap, pouring out a deafening stream of jazz music, allegedly comic tunes and "peppy" advertising patter. — Reuter.

CHINA MAIL'S ACCURATE SELECTIONS

Only Paper To Publish Final Results.

EDITIONS ON STREET BEFORE RACE-GOERS RETURN.

Race-goers returning from Happy Valley last evening were agreeably surprised to find extra editions of the China Mail, containing the complete results of the full racing programme and the draws for the cash sweeps, already selling on the streets.

The China Mail was the only newspaper to publish the full results yesterday, and the issue of the final edition within a few minutes after the finish of the last race constituted an achievement comparable with that of a modern metropolitan newspaper. Similar editions will be published on each of the four remaining days of the Annual Race Meeting.

The form displayed yesterday bore out the track comments published in the China Mail during the past fortnight. The China Mail racing selections were remarkably accurate. Owing to the uncertainty as to which race many of the horses were to start only 4 winners were tipped outright, but in the selections 3 other winners were selected. Six of the horses selected to win their events were scratched and as two of the failures included Coo Coo Bay and Diana Bay the Racing Editor proved remarkably successful.

In addition to the selections each day, comments on the previous day's racing will be published in China Mail during Race Week.

PRETTY KOWLOON WEDDING

Mr. G. H. Miles Weds Miss D. L. R. Smith.

POPULAR COUPLE

St. Andrew's Church, Kowloon, was the scene of a pretty wedding yesterday afternoon, when Miss Dorothy Lillian Rose Smith, eldest daughter of Mr. James Smith, Assistant Mechanical Engineer of the Kowloon-Canton Railway and Mrs. Smith, 1, Railway Terrace, Kowloon, became the bride of Mr. George Henry Miles, of Ashington, Northumberland. The Vicar, the Rev. W. Walton Rogers, M.A., officiated at the ceremony.

Entering the Church on the arm of her father, the bride looked charming in a white satin creation by Madame Leite. She also wore a white silk tulle veil with orange blossoms, and carried a bouquet of pink roses and asparagus fern. In attendance as bridesmaids were the Misses M. Smith, sister of the bride, O. Dalziel, S. Dalziel and H. Reid, who wore dresses of peach crepe-de-chine. They carried bouquets of peach gladioli.

The bride's mother attended in a dress of old gold lace made by Madame Leite also.

Mr. T. McInnes discharged the duties of best-man.

Subsequent to the ceremony, a largely attended reception was held at the Peninsula Hotel, after which the happy couple left for Macao, where their honeymoon is being spent. The bride's travelling dress was of sax. blue, with hat and coat to match.

The bride's gift to the groom was a pair of gold cuff links and studs, while the groom's gift to the bride was a gold pendant. The groom's gift to each bridesmaid was a crystal necklace.

The bridegroom is attached to the Sanitary Department, while the bride was formerly of the Office Staff of the Kowloon Dock, and is a regular playing member of the C.B.A. Ladies' hockey eleven.

News In Brief.

The Pauling Hunt Ball was held in the Rose Room of the Peninsula Hotel last night, and was largely attended.

The weekly summary of public vaccinations done by the St. John Ambulance Brigade up to February 16, gives a total of 65,820 for all districts in the Colony.

Six cases of small-pox, three of which occurred in Hong Kong, and one case of diphtheria, were notified to the Health Authorities on Friday.

What Are We Making Of Our Lives?

Lessons From Christ's Workshops

RESTORING LIFE'S BROKEN PIECES

(By A Local Padre.)

(This is another of the series of articles written exclusively for the "Sunday Herald" by a local Army chaplain.)

If you had lived in London 265 years ago, you would have been extremely lucky. Not because life in those far off days of the Restoration were better from any point of view than the ones in which we live. They definitely were not, from any standpoint. Your luck would consist in the fact that you had managed to have survived the Great Plague which had raged a couple of years previously and had taken such dreadful toll of the lives of men and women of every age, and every rank of society.

If you had not been carted away as a corpse, and thrown into one of the public incinerators, you would have seen the outbreak of the Great Fire, which even though it did such an enormous amount of damage materially and financially, yet did a tremendous amount of good, because it burned out the spots where the Plague had been raging, and gave the city a chance of being rebuilt on a scale otherwise impossible.

The crisis, as it always does, produced the man to meet it. In this case it was Sir Christopher Wren, the most brilliant architect England has ever known. To him was entrusted the great work of rebuilding St. Paul's Cathedral.

It has always been one of the outstanding virtues of our race, that we have preserved and kept in order these wonderful old churches, which are, after all, the urns which hold the ashes of England's history. Behind the bricks and mortar, of which they are composed, you are looking down the years of the past, which is the splendid mother of the present. Inside their vaults are laid the bones of those whose lives have shaped through storm and stress, through the dense drive of arrows, and the smoke of conflict, through a war of words, and through victories and defeats, more magnificent than gains, the destiny of the English people.

Wren's Compensation. Wren received as his compensation, a salary which in these days would be considered disgracefully small, but as his epitaph truly says, his work was "not for his own but for the public good." His name remains immortal in the work he left behind.

One morning he was passing through his workmen, engaged at their jobs, many of whom did not know him by sight, and of three different men engaged at the same kind of work, he asked the same question—"What are you doing?"

From the first he received the answer "I am cutting this stone." From the second the answer was "I am earning three shillings and sixpence a day." But the third man, straightened up, squared his shoulders, and holding his mallet in one hand, and his chisel in the other proudly replied "I am helping Sir Christopher Wren to build this great Cathedral."

I am passing on to you this morning the replies of these three men because they sum up so accurately the three ways in which people look at life.

1. I am just cutting this stone.
2. I am just earning a living.
3. I am doing a small part of a great work. I have not seen the Architect, and I do not altogether understand the plan. But I believe there is a plan, so I work with a good spirit in which there is no fear.

It is a good thing for all of us, to pull ourselves up short now and again, and ask ourselves the honest question "What are we making of our lives?"

Are we just drifting through, earning our money, and doing our jobs merely to keep body and soul together, or having realized our responsibility, are we pulling our weight, and doing our share in the great work the Divine Architect has committed to our charge?

We know something of His plan. We know it took Him millions of years to make the world in which we live a fit place to receive us. It was the very finest environment

God Almighty could produce. Then man by his own free will ruined that plan, and He had to begin all over again.

The days of magic are over. He cannot wave a wand across the sky and say "From this moment all sin and suffering shall cease." He has to work now through human agents. Every new invention that ameliorates the lot of humanity, every fresh discovery that lessens pain and suffering is the work of the Great Architect, helping man to help themselves, and undo the mischief they had done.

The Almighty Master. We have never seen Him, but we know a great deal about Him. That was one of the great reasons for the Incarnation. Christ answers every question we want to know about God. What does He think about suffering? The answer is, what did Christ do about it? Is He cruel, capricious, callous of our needs? The life, character, words, and personality of Christ give a complete denial to such a thought.

From Him we know that God does not come around the workshop periodically to see that men are doing their jobs as a foreman does, picking faults wherever He can find them. On the contrary, He stands by their sides in the dust and the dirt and the grim grinding noise. He takes off His coat, (speaking with all reverence), and lends a hand. It is something to know this, when the daily job gets a bit monotonous, and we lose heart, and wonder whether it is worth while to carry on.

The job of life, too, begins to acquire a new significance, when we remember that we are not ploughing a lone furrow but that He calls us to be fellow-workers with Him. That no matter how poor or insignificant we may seem to be, there is something we, and only we can do, in reconstructing the mosaic of life.

It is this work of restoring life's broken pieces, of re-building the world, even that little part of it in which we live and move and have our being, that lays upon us so exacting a calm to-day, and it will only be done, when each one of us realizes that he has a part to play. When we understand the meaning of those words.

He has need of me, Or else I would not be, I am here to complete His plan. We may not be called upon to build a whole Cathedral. If we have laid one brick, well and truly, we shall have done our job.

50,000 Chevrolets Turned Out In Two Months.

Longer Wheel Base Among Important Changes

RADICALLY DIFFERENT

Detroit. Prominent leaders in the automobile industry, commenting on the results of the recent election see the result as a long step in the direction of normalcy. They were free in expressing their individual opinions that improvement, and not disturbance, will follow. They believe, too, that the same condition would have resulted had President Hoover been successful at the polls. Before election day there was a tremendous wave of unrest and uncertainty, but with this now out of the way the road is believed cleared for an immediate upturn in the motor industry.

Closely following the election two of the 'giants of the industry' announced their plans for 1933, and others will soon follow. Chevrolet, a General Motors unit, announced a programme in preparation for the year just ahead, which calls for the expenditure of $20,000,000 within the next two months. The schedule also calls for the production of 50,000 cars, radically different from current models.

Chevrolet's New Models
The new Chevrolets will have longer wheel base and include many important changes. Prices are not yet available, but it is officially stated that they will be "at a price which takes into account to-day's incomes."

It was intimated by President W. S. Knudsen that final announcement of price, combined with the introduction of all models, will silence rumours that the new line would be "stripped" models designed to meet the bare needs of transportation.

The new series will be the fifth annual model to employ a six-cylinder engine. The company has produced and sold more than 3,000,000 sixes.

The new Plymouth six, recently announced in the world's first international radio conference, is now on display in all Chrysler showrooms throughout the country. The car is new from bumper to bumper and, of course, takes place in the low price field where competition is increasing daily. The price range is between $395 and $495, which represents a price decrease of $60 under prices of the former four-cylinder line.

On 107-Inch Wheel Base.
The new six is mounted on a 107-inch wheel base chassis, bodies are of the safety steel type, floating power engine, developing 70 brake horsepower, whose mountings differ slightly in design but not in principle from the present models. The free-wheeling unit is of the cam and roller type developed by Chrysler Motors' engineers. Standard equipment includes 17-inch wire wheels with tires, with demountable wood wheels of the same size obtainable at no increase in cost.

Officials at the Nash plant in Kenosha, decline to comment on their 1933 plans, but indications are that the new line is about ready for announcement and production is well under way. It is rumoured that the prices to go with the cars will be considerably reduced, and correspond with present incomes.

No statement is forthcoming from the Ford company on plans next year. No official inkling has been given on what the programme is in the face of the greatest competition in the low-price field that ever developed. It is likely however, that the V8 will be continued, either in the present form, or somewhat changed.

W. R. Angell, president of Continental Motors Corporation, has announced a change in the corporate name of the company's automobile division. To replace the name Continental De Vaux Company the name Continental Automobile Company has been selected. This company will be in the 1933 market with a new line of cars in the low-price field.

Buick Resumes Operations

Operations have resumed at the Flint factories of the Buick Motor Company, following a temporary shutdown due to changes made on bodies of 1933 models. The change has added a distinctive body feature to the new models.

All General Motors-made automobiles equipped with Fisher bodies hereafter, will have a new and revolutionary ventilation system for closed bodies. The new device provides constantly changing supply of fresh air at all times, eliminates drafts, and prevents the dangerous clouding of windows and windshields in wet or stormy weather.

The "greatest show on earth" of its kind, will be staged in Convention Hall in this city December 5 to 12, inclusive. The Motor and Equipment Manufacturers' Association and the National Standard Parts Association and more than 300 leading manufacturers are to display their products for the benefit of wholesalers who are coming to the Motor City from every corner of the United States and Canada.

Marked Improvement.
Members of the association are confident that a marked improvement in their particular lines of business, will begin not later than the first of the approaching new year. It is estimated that 10,000 buyers of parts and accessories will visit the show.

Convinced that business in general and the automotive division in particular has at last "turned the corner" and is now on its way to speedy recovery, virtually every company in the Detroit area is preparing for better times. All preliminary indications are that the motor-car offerings for 1933 will present many new features in both body design and mechanical improvement—an annual habit made possible by automotive engineers. Price appeal, particularly in the low-priced field, is to be stressed as never before.

EXHAUST IMPROVED IN NEW BUICK.

Pistons Coated With Metal Bearing.

THERMOSTAT HEAT CONTROL.

The basic construction of the New Buick's engine remains the same as in last year's line but for 1933 many important improvements have been added to increase its efficiency, life and control.

Pistons are plated with a light coating of bearing metal, eliminating the tiresome operation of breaking in a new car. With the coating of bearing metal on the pistons, new cars can be driven at general driving speeds without fear of scoring pistons. This does not mean, of course, that a new car should be driven at the highest speeds for indefinite periods but they can be driven up to sixty miles per hour without damage to the engine.

Four rings are used on the new Buick's pistons instead of three—two compression rings and two oil control rings. The second oil control ring has been added below the piston pin. With this type of oil control the oil economy is very much improved; in fact, at high speeds the improvement runs as much as 100 per cent.

The adoption of the four-ring piston is a very important feature as it adds many thousands of miles to the life of the engine. The life of an engine is usually judged from the amount of oil consumed and, after fifteen to twenty thousand miles of hard driving it was necessary some times on previous models to replace the rings. With the new construction the life will be doubled.

Exhaust Improved.
Both the exhaust manifold and the muffler have been improved to eliminate breakage and reduce back pressure. The manifold has expansion and contraction, due to extreme temperature changes, will not cause breakage.

The muffler is of the resonance or straight-through type, which means that there is a 2 inch opening directly thru the muffler which reduces the back pressure from approximately five pounds to one and one-half pounds, increasing the power of the engine at high speeds. The muffler has silencing chambers which reduce exhaust noise to a minimum. This type of muffler also has a great deal longer life than the baffle type used on previous models.

The automatic heat control assures proper engine operation at all temperatures without attention from the driver. With the manual device formerly furnished on the instrument board, it was left to the driver to set the heat control to meet the various temperature conditions. This was often neglected at the expense of poor performance and economy.

Heat Control.
The heat is controlled by a valve operated by a thermostat, with outside air directed to the thermostat so that the mixture will always be kept at the proper temperature for best performance under all driving conditions. With the proper temperature regulation, it is possible to raise the compression of the engines several pounds—adding further improvement in economy and performance.

ARGENTINE TRUCK DEMAND.

Washington. An upward trend in truck sales during the first eight months of 1932 is reported, by Argentine dealers, according to information just given out by the automotive division of the U.S. Department of State.

Sales of high-priced cars in this period held practically even with those in the same period of 1931. These sales, however, are reflected in lowered stocks and did not appreciably influence imports.

"STYLE," as applied to the Packard, has always meant something more.

Associated with it, logically and distinctively, is the other important word, "enduring"—a Packard characteristic for a third of a century.

So gradually and correctly has Packard style evolved—like the slow unfolding of a beautiful flower—it has never been at the mercy of that capricious mood which too often alienates to-morrow's style from that of to-day.

THE SPORT OF KINGS! GREATEST RACING THRILL OF ALL TIMES!

"SWEEPSTAKES" IS A COMEDY
THRILLER OF THE TURF.

Followers of the turf, or anyone interested in the thrilling Sport of Kings, will find "SWEEPSTAKES" a most entertaining film. The last Agua Caliente Handicap, a gallop of gold recognised as the richest and most spectacular stake race. In the realm of horseflesh, provides one of the many exciting scenes in this comedy-drama. Night scenes of Tia Juana, the Mexican border resort, and additional racing events at the Tanforan race track near San Francisco were also filmed by Director Albert Rogell at their authentic locales. Eddie Quillan, is seen as the jockey, while his leading lady, Marion Nixon, offers a pleasing interpretation of a cabaret singer who wins his heart. Other important players in the cast are James Gleason, who provides the comedy in his usual inimitable manner, and Lew Cody. Here is a film that is refreshingly different to anything we have seen in a long time. It marks a return to the unsophisticated, honest drama. Every variety of thrill is provided. It's a film for all the family to see.

WITH

JAMES GLEASON—MARION NIXON—LEW CODY

More drama crammed into one hour than you'd see in a year at Belmont Park,
Saratoga or Agua Caliente!

MARION NIXON SINGS IN
"SWEEPSTAKES".

Charming Marion Nixon, who captured your hearts in "REBECCA OF SUNNYBROOK FARM", provides a new thrill in "SWEEPSTAKES" by singing on the screen for the first time. Her rendering of the theme song "How About Me Calling You My Sweetheart" is very well put over. She has a very pleasant singing voice, which used to entertain vaudeville audiences before she entered pictures. Miss Nixon came to the West Coast in a dance act on the Pantages Circuit. While appearing in Los Angeles, she became interested in pictures, and, on termination of her local stage engagement, she applied for atmosphere work in the studios. It was not long before she rose to the heights. Subsequently she was elected a Wampas Baby Star. Marion Nixon was specially picked for the role by Charles R. Rodgers, producer of "SWEEPSTAKES", after having tried and tested numerous other aspirants.

EXTREMELY GRAVE SITUATION

If there is no proper defence of the South-west by this time, the telegram said, it will be too late to prepare for anything when the enemy invades this section of the country. "The creation of this Committee is to protect the lives and property of the people in the South-west, and we students must support it," the message added.—

Sino-Japanese Tariff Treaty May Go.

Canton, Yesterday.
Opposition is voiced against the renewal of the Sino-Japanese tariff treaty which was concluded in 1930 and will expire on May 5 this year, according to a cable dispatched yesterday by the Kuomintang office of the southern section of the Canton-Hankow Railway and addressed to the Central authorities.
The telegram is prompted by the report that Nanking is contemplating the negotiation of a new treaty with Japan, and objection against renewal is based on the Japanese invasion of China. This is to avoid Japanese pretences of friendship with China, while all the time she has concocted intrigues against this country, the message declared.
Regardless whether the treaty calls for equality between the parties or necessary revision to improve trade, the telegram urges Nanking not to renew it in view of the Japanese occupation of Manchuria and the devastation of Shanghai, not to mention the killing of thousands of innocent
Chinese and the immense privation
China has suffered.
A circular telegram to the foregoing effect is sent to the public bodies throughout the country.

FIRE IN CENTRAL DISTRICT.

Chinese Woman Injured.

Shortly after 11.30 p.m. last night, a fire broke out at 43, Tung Street, which is situated in a thickly populated area in the Central district.
The ground floor was occupied by a Chinese painter's establishment, while the upper two floors are dwellings.
The entire dwelling was damaged by fire and it is believed an elderly Chinese woman was injured. She was removed to hospital.
The Fire Brigade extinguished
the flames within half-an-hour.
Chinese Boy Scouts in uniform assisted the firemen, while a member of the St. John Ambulance Brigade were also ready at hand.
